The 19th Theoretical Aspects of Software Engineering Conference

July 14-16 2025 • Limassol, Cyprus

The 19th Theoretical Aspects of Software Engineering Conference (TASE 2025) will be held in Limassol, Cyprus on 14-16, 2025. TASE 2025 aims to provide a forum for people from academia and industry to communicate their latest results on innovative advances in software engineering. Modern society is increasingly dependent on software systems that are becoming larger and more complex. This poses new challenges to the various aspects of software engineering, for instance, software dependability in trusted computing, interaction with physical components in cyber physical systems, quality assurance in AI-embedded systems, distribution in cloud computing applications, security and privacy in general. Hence, new concepts and methodologies are required to enhance the development of software engineering from theoretical aspects.

About Cyprus

Cyprus, the third-largest island in the Mediterranean, covers an area of 9,251 sq. km and is located in the northeastern corner of the Mediterranean Sea, 300 km north of Egypt and 360 km southeast of Rhodes. The island features a varied coastline, rocky and indented in the north with sandy beaches in the south, and is home to the Pentadaktylos and Troodos mountain ranges, with fertile plains in between. As of 2012, Cyprus had a population of 952,100, predominantly Greek Cypriots, alongside Turkish Cypriots and foreign residents. With a history dating back to the ninth millennium B.C., Cyprus has seen the influence of multiple civilizations, including the Phoenicians, Greeks, Romans, Byzantines, and Ottomans, before gaining independence from British rule in 1960. The island's flag, featuring a copper-colored map and olive branches on a white background, symbolizes peace and its historical ties to copper. Cyprus enjoys a Mediterranean climate with hot, dry summers and mild, wet winters, and its cuisine reflects its rich cultural history, combining elements from the Middle East, Asia Minor, and Venetian traditions. The island also boasts a long tradition of winemaking, with Commandaria being one of the oldest wines in the world, renowned since ancient times and enjoyed by figures such as Richard the Lionheart and the Crusaders.
